

Pattawong Panodtee was in charge of the geospatial map and comparison chart.

Victoria Ly was in charge of the html layout, color schemes, buttons, scale bar and overview.

We worked together on gathering data about Thailand, then we translated each data file from Thai to english names for each province, came up with a title, and we helped each other equally throughout this project. We also did a lot of paired programming in order to get everything functioning correctly. We helped each other out a good amount so that we could double check each other's work and give advice on the various interactions and tooltips included in this project. We both feel as though we did an equal amount of work on this project and we worked really well together. We also had a lot of great feedback from the TA's and the professor which really made our visualization stronger.
